SCOUTING—The Best Investment You Can Make

AN EDITORIAL

In the 27 years of Torrance's existence it has witnessed many campaigns for one purpose or another. But in all this quarter century of development there has been no greater issue at stake than the one which will be the objective of a drive starting tomorrow morning. It concerns the future welfare of the youth of this city—the citizens of tomorrow.

It is futile to decry the alarming increase in juvenile delinquency (which during the past six months has brought one-out-of-every-eight boys in Torrance before the law) unless we do something about it.

Alarmed at this condition, a number of serious minded men have decided to correct it by providing a program of wholesome, character building activities. Normal boys are active young dynamos of energy. They must be doing something all the time. Unless their leisure time is occupied by the right sort of things, they are apt to fall into ways of wrong doing.

In seeking the right program for youth development, it was natural to turn to the institution which for the past 25 years has been specializing in boys' work—the Boy Scouts of America.

For too many years Scouting has been badly neglected in Torrance. We have never had the proper functioning bodies to guide and foster the Boy Scout movement here. And this is no discredit to the few—all too few—hard working Scout leaders who have labored unselfishly and ardently to keep alive and together the few troops that have existed in recent years.

But Scouting is about to enter a new era—if the interest shown during the past two weeks by responsible citizens is continued—and there is every indication that this enthusiasm will continue and grow as the enlarged Scouting program gets under way.

This week a district committee was installed, following an outline of each member's responsibilities as explained by O. B. Mathews and Donald Monroe, assistant executives of the Boy Scouts of America in the Los Angeles metropolitan area. The soundness of the program ahead is reflected by the committee assignments and the high type of men who will head these activities. They are J. W. Post, district chairman; Rev. Thos. R. Marshall, vice-chairman; F. L. Parks, organization and extension; Ray Begue, camping; Dr. W. J. Harrison, health and safety; J. R. Winters, advancement; Pete Zamperini, leadership and training; Chas. E. Conner, finance; Ray E. Burdick, district commissioner; and Grover Whyte, publicity. Sam Levy, John T. Oursler, George Peckham and C. T. Rippey are community representatives. Troop representatives are Scott R. Ludlow, Dr. R. A. Bingham, Chas. E. Conner and Langdon E. Rose.

These men, together with the capable and devoted leaders of the present troops and those which are soon to be organized, are to keep the Boy Scout program moving.

You too, can help by extending a sympathetic audience to whichever of the 80 volunteer workers who is giving up valuable time from his business or profession during the coming week to tell you of the plan for re-vigorating the Boy Scout movement in Torrance. You will be asked to invest what you can in the best paying proposition in America—the boys of today, who will be the citizens of tomorrow.

John Fess Elected Head of Breakfast Club Here Sunday

The Fess home on Arlington avenue was the setting for an enjoyable party Sunday afternoon when members of the Torrance Breakfast Club were entertained at dinner.

The secretary's report was very amusing while the treasurer reported a balance of three cents on hand as a result of the "wreck-the-treasury" party at Earl Carroll's last month. President Miller immediately started a new treasury by fining various members for omissions and commissions.

New by-laws presented at the January meeting were ratified. Officers who will serve during the ensuing year are John Fess, president; Frank Brown, vice-president; Lillian Shriver, secretary-treasurer; Archer Lewis, publicity chairman, and Joyce Bever, mascot.
